Boarding Week Feedback

During the two-week Boarding Week, I had the opportunity to engage in a series of daily tasks focused on twelve important aspects of personal and professional development. Each day brought a new challenge, from setting up my LinkedIn profile to crafting a compelling self-introduction, preparing for project presentations, tackling behavioural and situational interview questions, and participating in mock interviews and phone calls. These sessions were designed to build both my technical and communication skills, ensuring a well-rounded preparation for future opportunities.

One of the key highlights of the week was completing a machine task during the first Boarding Week—a URL shortener project—which allowed me to apply my technical knowledge. I also participated in two mock phone calls, both of which were invaluable experiences. The project presentations, mock interview rounds, and sessions on salary negotiation, PF, bonds, and HR interview questions provided me with a comprehensive understanding of the recruitment process. Overall, the Boarding Week was an enriching experience that equipped me with the necessary skills to excel in both technical and communication aspects.
